Mac Accuses President Of 'Blundering'

We Are Following Path To World War General Says; Opponents Reply

SEATTLE, Nov. 14—Gen. Douglas MacArthur accused the Truman administration last night of "blundering" down the path to another world war.

MacArthur opened Seattle's Centennial celebration with a warning that "we are following the same path... which projected us into World War I, World War II and the war in Korea."

Mac's Talk Highlights

SEATTLE, Nov. 14—Following are some of the highlights of General MacArthur's address at the Seattle centennial last night:

"We are following the same path which projected us into World War I, World War II and the war in Korea."

"The greatest hazard under which we now labor is the fear that policy and propaganda of our present leadership may be setting the stage for a third world war."

"Slanted propaganda and abusive language are used to suppress criticism of the public administration and discourage dissemination of the truth. Suppression is now even sought through the spurious device of an information blackout with respect to public affairs—a so-called security measure, the like of which was never before attempted even during war."

"Regardless of motive, those who thus belittle our interest in the Pacific in favor of concentrating attention on the Atlantic are just as isolationist in their thinking as would be those who belittle our interest in the Atlantic in favor of concentrating on the Pacific. Either reflects a dangerously unbalanced vision."

"Many peoples have lost faith in our leadership, and there is a growing anxiety in the American home as disclosures reveal graft and corruption over a broad front in our public service. Those charged with its stewardship seem either apathetic, indifferent or in seeming condonation."

"There is an almost insatiable demand for money to finance policies seemingly designed but to spend and spend and spend. Should this trend continue the federal government may well become for all practical purposes the sole taxing power."

"The people have it in their hands to restore morality, wisdom and vision to the direction of our foreign and domestic affairs."

"Ever since the entry of Communist China (into the Korean war) a year ago, we have had the means of bringing it to a prompt and victorious end and thus to save countless American lives and avoid the risk of its spreading into a global conflict inherent in its long continuance."

Three-Dimensional Radar Perfected By Scientists

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 14—Three-dimensional radar—a radar that can give a "solid" picture, from any angle, of objects miles away—is a reality.

A University of Minnesota physicist demonstrated the remarkable new instrument in a cluttered laboratory room today and showed how it takes information that "goes to waste" in ordinary radar sets and uses it to add a third dimension.

On the new device, the image of an airplane that is approaching the radar observer's control hut will grow larger and seem to move forward from deep within the radar picture as the plane nears.

A receding airplane will throw an image that dwindles and seems to move deeper into the radar screen.

And by adjusting two special electronic controls, the radar observer can "walk all around" the image—seeing what it looks like from above, below or any side angle.

ed us into World War

He accused the administration having "projected us into a world war with neither the consent of Congress nor the consent of the developed war policies of the United States."

Seattle radio stations and papers received some critical phone calls while the general was speaking.

Among officialdom, Rep. Mitchell, (D) Wash., accused Arthur of presidential ambition and declared:

"I CAN RECALL no more agogic speech than the one tonight from Douglas MacArthur."

Mitchell accused the former preme commander in the Far East of "subverting to partisan politics" the city's Centennial celebration. He called the speech "gross insult to the citizens' title."

Mitchell refused invitations to the platform at the speech to be present with MacArthur at the debarcation of Korean veterans at Seattle today.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, Wash., also declined an invitation to sit on the rostrum with MacArthur. But Govs. Arthur Langlie of Washington and Douglas McKay of Oregon, both Republicans, and Sen. Harry Campbell (R) Wash., were on the platform. MacArthur lashed out at government spending and taxation, assailed particularly President Truman's newly-installed "security program."

War In Korea Unnecessary, Taft Declares

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 14—The war in Korea again has been labeled "unnecessary" by Sen. Robert A. Taft, (R) Ohio.

In a free-swinging attack on the policies of the Truman administration, the candidate for the Republican presidential nomination last night assailed federal policies which he said were "waverin and indicative of a 'lack of judgment'."

(Editor's note: A similar criticism of Mr. Truman was made last night in Seattle by Gen. Douglas MacArthur. See story above.) Taft spoke to delegates attending the closing session of the 29th annual convention of the Pennsylvania GOP Council of Women.

Taft made it plain that he believed the war in Korea and the 95,000 Americans killed, wounded and missing are a result of the Truman policies.

"We have not had," Taft said, "an overpowering sense of a duty for peace."

He was critical of Truman's insistence on bypassing Congress in sending American troops to Korea without its approval and declared: "As long as you have that of President you can't tell many wars we'll get involved in certainly we can't feel safe as that kind of man is President."

NEW RED TALK READIED

Small Nations Line Up In Opposing Vishinsky

PARIS, Nov. 14—Denmark's foreign minister said today that Andrei Vishinsky is "irrational" in charging the West with warmongering and urged Russia to accept the Western nations' disarmament offer.

Foreign Minister Ole Bjørn Kraft, speaking at the United Nations General Assembly, launched a small nations pressure campaign to get the Kremlin to compromise on the question of disarmament.

He coupled the appeal with another assault on the Soviet foreign minister whose sarcastic, biting speech to the assembly last week dealt a body blow to hopes of an East-West settlement.

While pleading with the Russians "not to reject the hand extended by the West" and to use the tripartite disarmament plan as a stepping stone to peace, the Dane assailed Vishinsky for saying the Western plan was laughable. Kraft said:

"MR. VISHINSKY said he couldn't sleep because he kept laughing. I was sleepless like many others—deprived of sleep not by laughter but by grief and anxiety because this was the answer given to the West's appeal for cooperation." Then he asked:

"Was Mr. Vishinsky's speech really aiming for peace?" At the same time, Secretary of State Acheson's hard-boiled opposition to admission of Red China has—according to Iron Curtain sources—caused Vishinsky to make a long report to the Kremlin.

Acheson declared that the international conduct of the Peiping regime was "so low, it would take considerable improvement to raise it to the level of barbarism."

IT IS NOW understood that Vishinsky is seeking renewed instructions before making a second speech Friday winding up assembly debate. His second appearance at the rostrum will not be disrupted by the United States.

Assembly President Nervio agreed to Vishinsky's second only if there are "not too many" objections from other UN members.

Russian gave as his reason for second appearance the fact that "optional attacks" on him re-

CAIRO, Nov. 14—British troops today in the Suez Canal zone fired a series of shots and a series of British troops.

34 Aboard Lost Plane

C-82 Feared Down In French Mountains

FRANKFURT, Nov. 14—A fleet of 50 American planes—hampered by heavy fog and snow—searched mountainous Central France today for a missing U. S. Air Force plane which disappeared yesterday with 34 aboard.

The twin-engine Army transport was carrying four crew members, 29 U. S. military airmen and an Army soldier on a routine flight to Bordeaux on the French coast.

U. S. Air Force headquarters said an advance search base was set up at Lyon. The discouraging weather forecast was "bad and getting worse."

One group of planes, including a helicopter, concentrated on a search of the Mont Dore area, near Clermont Ferrand, west of Lyon.

The Air Force said that the rescue planes—aided by four airborne medical units and foot parties—began searching the 330-mile area between Dijon and Bordeaux before dawn.

ALL MILITARY and commercial planes traversing the region were asked to keep a lookout for the wreckage of the C-82.

Although the C-82 type plane is often used as a hospital plane for evacuation purposes, an Air Force spokesman denied a report that the plane was evacuating hospital patients from Germany. He said a hospital flight left Germany yesterday, but arrived safely and returned to its base.

According to Air Force officials, the missing plane last radioed its position from a point over Dijon in Eastern France. But later reports said the plane had checked in by radio over Corbigny, 270 miles northwest of Bordeaux and 125 miles south east of Paris.

Writ Awaited Against Girl In Store Holdup

Phyllis Helen Canter, 14-year-old Lancaster girl who late Monday night staged an "armed" robbery of a local drug store, is being held by Fairfield juvenile authorities Wednesday, pending a later hearing on the case.

The girl was returned to Lancaster Tuesday afternoon by Fairfield authorities, who questioned her further on her story of the robbery.

Meanwhile, a complaint was to be filed in juvenile court here Wednesday, requesting that the Canter girl be returned to Pickaway County for hearing.

Karl Herrmann, local probation officer, said that the girl's mother, Mrs. Alma Canter, must also sign a waiver, before the girl can be returned here.

He said that the hearing will be held in this county because witnesses of the drug store holdup are here.

THE CASE is then expected to be presented to Juvenile Court Judge George Young, who would rule on the matter. The Judge would also set the time for a hearing.

After a declaration of the girl's delinquency, the case would then revert back to Fairfield County authorities for disposition.

The girl was apprehended Monday night by local police in a room (Continued on Page Two)

PRONOUNCED DEAD last Thursday after her "corpse" was found in her bathtub, Mrs. Theresa Butler, 60-year-old widow, keeps up her unconscious fight for life in San Francisco hospital. FORMAL LETTER NOW ENROUTE

Single Irate Fan Putting Whole City In Disrepute

Circleville high school officials Wednesday were continuing their search for the adult fan responsible for having the school called onto the carpet in Columbus Tuesday.

Following last Friday night's final game of the season between Washington C. H. and Circleville, an adult fan attacked Referee Jack McLain.

As a result of the attack, representatives of the school were ordered Tuesday to appear at a hearing in the office of H. W. Emswiler, head of the Ohio High School Athletic Association.

Search for the fan is for one reason: As matters now stand, the entire community—including innocent school youngsters—are on the black list. The one lone irate fan thus is bringing penalty to hundreds instead of being vested against a single person.

At the hearing, McLain stated he was assaulted by an adult fan as he passed through the west gate of the field after the game.

THE REFEREE, required by the officials' association to make reports in situations such as the one which happened Friday night, told Emswiler:

"There was no trouble at all with players of either team."

"As I was passing through the gate at the west end of the field, I was hit three or four times in the head and chest. Then Bill Pullin (another of the four officials on hand for the contest) got hold of the man who struck me and held him a moment or so. He advised the man to leave and released him."

"But the man ran around an auto and struck me again in the school building. This time he knocked me down."

"It wasn't that he hit me so hard as it was I had difficulty trying to stand on a concrete floor while wearing cleats."

J. Wray Henry, principal of Circleville high school, stated at the hearing that Police Chief William F. McCrady called him prior to the game and suggested that 11 policemen be on duty at the game, instead of the usual eight.

HENRY SAID he told the chief to go ahead and get the extra men. And deputies of the sheriff's department and sheriff's auxiliaries were on hand for the game, also. "Thus the school officials felt everything was going to be well taken care of," Henry said.

Coach Tom Bennett, attending the hearing, along with Coach Steve Brudzinski, said four officials were hired to handle the game on the field because of its importance.

"This is the first time we ever had four officials in Circleville and, from what I saw of the (Continued on Page Two)

EVANSTON, Wyo., Nov. 14—Additional victims still were being sought today in the tangled wreckage of two Union Pacific streamliners near Evanston. The mass of twisted steel has given up 16 bodies so far.

Rescue teams working in zero weather used blow torches to cut through the wreckage. They were told that others are believed to be buried underneath the huge pile of shattered metal, wood and glass.

Meanwhile, Union Pacific President A. E. Stoddard ordered a detailed investigation of Monday's crash.

Truman To Face Trouble With Dixiecrats Again

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 14—Dissident Southern governors made it clear today that the Democrat Party will have trouble again in 1952 with the traditionally "Solid South."

A two-day conference of 16 Southern governors ended here last night on a note of triumph for Dixiecrat foes of President Truman.

Gov. Sid McMath of Arkansas, an administration supporter, regretted that the governors had been "forced to stand up and be counted" on party solidarity. He said: "There are five unreconstructed Dixiecrats in our midst."

He did not identify the five, but Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas said McMath's estimate was too low and charged the Arkansas governor had opened the meeting to "untimely politics."

Shivers asserted that McMath, who was the host governor, precipitated the split by his invitations to House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Little Rock Editor Harry Ashmore.

Another No-Progress Parley Held

Chinese General Gives Challenge

MUNSAN, Nov. 14—Communist truce delegates challenged the Allies to accept an immediate ceasefire in Korea or break off armistice talks today.

An Allied briefing officer reported the Red challenge following another "no progress" session at Panmunjom.

The briefing officer, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, said that Gen. Hsieh-fang, Communist spokesman, told the Allied delegates that there must be a clear agreement immediately on exactly where the battle will end. Otherwise, the Red delegate said, other items on the truce conference agenda cannot be discussed and no armistice will be reached.

Hsieh-fang who is attached to Red China's "volunteer" army in Korea, threw down the gauntlet to the Allies in a challenge to continue the Korean war indefinitely when he told the UN delegates:

"IF YOU CHOOSE to vaunt military pressure... you have the freedom to stay away from the conference and try to change the contact line."

The Chinese general in his challenge referred to Allied demands that any buffer zone be set up on the basis of the military contact line across Korea at the time an armistice is signed.

A United Nations communique said that during the day's meeting it "became unmistakably clear... no mutually acceptable solution is in sight" for the problem of setting up a demilitarized zone in preparation for an armistice.

In what some Allied observers said was a propaganda move, the Red delegates pointed out the themselves as "peace-lovers" and told Allied representatives they are seeking an immediate end to the 17-month-old Korean war.

The Panmunjom meeting, by agreement of both sides, is concerned merely with discussion of a buffer zone preparatory to an armistice but has made little or no progress toward setting up a demarcation line in 27 meetings.

During today's five-hour session, the Reds said they will not talk about any other items on the truce conference agenda until the buffer zone issue is settled. They added that they do not see how such a zone could be changed by future military action.

LAST WEEK, the Allies suggested in effect that the buffer zone issue be bypassed while other matters such as exchange of war prisoners and a joint armistice commission were discussed. The Reds ignored this suggestion.

The Allies maintained their stand that fighting in Korea should go on until a formal armistice is signed and until all items on the agenda are settled.

C-82 Feared Down In French Mountains

FRANKFURT, Nov. 14—A fleet of 50 American planes—hampered by heavy fog and snow—searched mountainous Central France today for a missing U. S. Air Force plane which disappeared yesterday with 34 aboard.

The twin-engine Army transport was carrying four crew members, 29 U. S. military airmen and an Army soldier on a routine flight to Bordeaux on the French coast.

ALL MILITARY and commercial planes traversing the region were asked to keep a lookout for the wreckage of the C-82.

Although the C-82 type plane is often used as a hospital plane for evacuation purposes, an Air Force spokesman denied a report that the plane was evacuating hospital patients from Germany. He said a hospital flight left Germany yesterday, but arrived safely and returned to its base.

According to Air Force officials, the missing plane last radioed its position from a point over Dijon in Eastern France. But later reports said the plane had checked in by radio over Corbigny, 270 miles northwest of Bordeaux and 125 miles south east of Paris.

Building Costs Due To Go Up

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—The Office of Price Stabilization today authorized higher charges for homebuilding and other construction work.

OPS said the new rates will reflect increases in labor and materials costs incurred since June 25, 1950, when the Korean war began. Workers' wages have risen ten percent and the price of building materials 12 percent.

A new regulation, effective Nov. 20, allows builders to pass the increases along to the public but limits the profit markup to nine-tenths of that charged for a similar job during the base period of July 1, 1949, to June 24, 1950.

THE CASE is then expected to be presented to Juvenile Court Judge George Young, who would rule on the matter. The Judge would also set the time for a hearing.

After a declaration of the girl's delinquency, the case would then revert back to Fairfield County authorities for disposition.

She is attended by nurse Mrs. Ruth Wright, Dr. Paul Stratte, night superintendent at the hospital, said, however, that Mrs. Butler, if she wins the battle, may survive only as a "human vegetable" because of damage to her nervous system during a death-like coma.

FORMAL LETTER NOW ENROUTE

Single Irate Fan Putting Whole City In Disrepute

Circleville high school officials Wednesday were continuing their search for the adult fan responsible for having the school called onto the carpet in Columbus Tuesday.

Following last Friday night's final game of the season between Washington C. H. and Circleville, an adult fan attacked Referee Jack McLain.

As a result of the attack, representatives of the school were ordered Tuesday to appear at a hearing in the office of H. W. Emswiler, head of the Ohio High School Athletic Association.

Search for the fan is for one reason: As matters now stand, the entire community—including innocent school youngsters—are on the black list. The one lone irate fan thus is bringing penalty to hundreds instead of being vested against a single person.

At the hearing, McLain stated he was assaulted by an adult fan as he passed through the west gate of the field after the game.

THE REFeree, required by the officials' association to make reports in situations such as the one which happened Friday night, told Emswiler:

"There was no trouble at all with players of either team.

"As I was passing through the gate at the west end of the field, I was hit three or four times in the head and chest. Then Bill Pullin (another of the four officials on hand for the contest) got hold of the man who struck me and held him a moment or so. He advised the man to leave and released him.

"But the man ran around an auto and struck me again in the school building. This time he knocked me down.

"It wasn't that he hit me so hard as it was I had difficulty trying to stand on a concrete floor while wearing cleats."

J. Wray Henry, principal of Circleville high school, stated at the hearing that Police Chief William F. McCrady called him prior to the game and suggested that 11 police-

Building Costs Due To Go Up

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—The Office of Price Stabilization today authorized higher charges for homebuilding and other construction work.

OPS said the new rates will reflect increases in labor and materials costs incurred since June 25, 1950, when the Korean war began. Workers' wages have risen ten percent and the price of building materials 12 percent.

A new regulation, effective Nov. 20, allows builders to pass the increases along to the public but limits the profit markup to nine-tenths of that charged for a similar job during the base period of July 1, 1949, to June 24, 1950.

THE CASE is then expected to be presented to Juvenile Court Judge George Young, who would rule on the matter. The Judge would also set the time for a hearing.

After a declaration of the girl's delinquency, the case would then revert back to Fairfield County authorities for disposition.

The girl was apprehended Monday night by local police in a room

Another No-Progress Parley Held

Chinese General Gives Challenge

MUNSAN, Nov. 14—Communist truce delegates challenged the Allies to accept an immediate ceasefire in Korea or break off armistice talks today.

An Allied briefing officer reported the Red challenge following another "no progress" session at Panmunjom.

The briefing officer, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, said that Gen. Hsieh-fang, Communist spokesman, told the Allied delegates that there must be a clear agreement immediately on exactly where the battle will end. Otherwise, the Red delegate said, other items on the truce conference agenda cannot be discussed and no armistice will be reached.

Hsieh-fang who is attached to Red China's "volunteer" army in Korea, threw down the gauntlet to the Allies in a challenge to continue the Korean war indefinitely when he told the UN delegates:

"IF YOU CHOOSE to vaunt military pressure... you have the freedom to stay away from the conference and try to change the contact line."

The Chinese general in his challenge referred to Allied demands that any buffer zone be set up on the basis of the military contact line across Korea at the time an armistice is signed.

A United Nations communique said that during the day's meeting it "became unmistakably clear... no mutually acceptable solution is in sight" for the problem of setting up a demilitarized zone in preparation for an armistice.

In what some Allied observers said was a propaganda move, the Red delegates pictured themselves as "peace-lovers" and told Allied representatives they are seeking an immediate end to the 17-month-old Korean war.

The Panmunjom meeting, by agreement of both sides, is concerned merely with discussion of a buffer zone preparatory to an armistice but has made little or no progress toward setting up a demarcation line in 27 meetings.

During today's five-hour session, the Reds said they will not talk about any other items on the truce conference agenda until the buffer zone issue is settled. They added that they do not see how such a zone could be changed by future military action.

LAST WEEK, the Allies suggested in effect that the buffer zone issue be bypassed while other matters such as exchange of war prisoners and a joint armistice commission were discussed. The Reds ignored this suggestion.

The Allies maintained their stand that fighting in Korea should go on until a formal armistice is signed and until all items on the agenda are settled.

16 Bodies Found In Rail Debris

EVANSTON, Wyo., Nov. 14—Additional victims still were being sought today in the tangled wreckage of two Union Pacific streamliners near Evanston. The mass of twisted steel has given up 16 bodies so far.

Rescue teams working in zero weather used blow torches to cut through the wreckage. They were told that others are believed to be buried underneath the huge pile of shattered metal, wood and glass.

Meanwhile, Union Pacific President A. E. Stoddard ordered a detailed investigation of Monday's crash.

Truman To Face Trouble With Dixiecrats Again

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 14—Dixiecrat Southern governors made it clear today that the Democrat Party will have trouble again in 1952 with the traditionally "Solid South."

A two-day conference of 18 Southern governors ended here last night on a note of triumph for Dixiecrat foes of President Truman.

Gov. Sid McMath of Arkansas, an administration supporter, regretted that the governors had been "forced to stand up and be counted" on party solidarity. He said: "There are five unreconstructed Dixiecrats in our midst."

He did not identify the five, but Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas said McMath's estimate was too low and charged the Arkansas governor had opened the meeting to "untimely politics."

Shivers asserted that McMath, who was the host governor, precipitated the split by his invitations to House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Little Rock Editor Harry Ashmore.

Dixiecrat leaders at Hot Springs claimed that Texas can now be added to these four states. Shivers of the Lone Star state said flatly that Texas will not vote again for Mr. Truman.

All the Dixiecrat governors rejected Rayburn's argument that the South will lose political influence if the Republicans win the election.

They argued that the South will be in a stronger position by remaining independent and acting as a balance of power in a congressional coalition.

blackout" on government information.

"Slanted propaganda and abusive language are used to suppress criticism of the public administration and to discourage dissemination of the truth," he said. "Suppression is now even sought through the spurious device of an information blackout with respect to public affairs—a so-called security measure, the like of which was never before attempted even during war."

MacARTHUR called America's potential industrial strength and expanding armament a guarantee against any "willfully designed" enemy action against the U.S. He cautioned, however, that "war is come about through blundering statesmanship animated by a lust for political power."

The great issue now before our people, the ousted Pacific commander added, is "shall we preserve our freedom, or yield it to a centralized government under the concept of socialism. There can be no compromise, it must be all or nothing."

The five-star general asserted, however, that "the people have it in their hands to restore morality, wisdom and vision to the direction of our foreign and domestic affairs."

In reference to the Korean war, whose administration led to his removal from command by President Truman last April, MacArthur again deplored its "indefinite continuation."

"Ever since the entry of Communist China a year ago," he said, "we have had the means of bringing it to a prompt and victorious end and thus to save countless American lives and avoid the risk of its spreading into a global conflict inherent in its long continuance."

MacARTHUR called upon Seattle, as a great Pacific port, to look to the west for future trade. "There should be no pitting of Atlantic interests against those of the Pacific," he declared.

In his criticism of present-day government actions, MacArthur described "an almost insatiable demand for money to finance policies seemingly designed but to spend and spend and spend." He called taxation "the most sinister of all political powers."

Some of the penalties of excessive taxes, the general added, are obscured at present by government spending.

"But the day of reckoning is inevitable," he said, "and understanding and fear of this injects a tragic apprehension in the American mind." He added:

"The greatest hazard under which we now labor is the fear that the policy and propaganda of our present leadership may be setting the stage for a third world war. We cannot be satisfied with a leadership which declaims a devotion to peace with platitudinous statements and phrases while taking steps which inexorably tend to lead toward war."

MacArthur deplored what he termed a lack of interest on the part of the U.S. towards Asia, and said our political stature has been impaired by "a succession of diplomatic blunders abroad." He declared the present administration has contributed to the building of Soviet military strength through lend-lease aid.

In addition, the general noted what he called growing anxiety at home over disclosure of graft and corruption. Government leaders, he continued, "seem either apathetic, indifferent, or in seeming condemnation."

Game Warden Confused On Squirrel Carcass

A Fayette County game warden is probably boning up on his squirrel lessons.

Earlier this week Irvin Patrick, acting on a tip from neighbors, got a search warrant to look for squirrels in the home of Floyd Wickell in Mt. Sterling who was accused of jumping the gun on the season.

He was jubilant when he found a small frozen carcass and ordered Wickell to court in London for a hearing on a charge of shooting squirrel out of season.

But Wickell showed Tuesday that the "squirrel" was actually a South American chinchilla which had died. Wickell had skinned the $700 animal and frozen the carcass to send to specialists for an autopsy.

Wickell owns one of Ohio's few chinchilla herds.

PUCO Suggests Utility Get Loan For Its Fixup

The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio Wednesday raised the possibility of a $150,000 loan instead of a half-million dollar emergency rate boost to get the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. out of financial trouble.

During a commission hearing in Columbus, Commission Member Ralph Winter asked a company witness if Ohio Consolidated could not borrow the money needed to meet debt interest and dividend requirements.

The witness, Ewing Boles, president of the firm, replied that it was not his opinion such means of meeting the problem would be the most advisable.

Among the several areas fighting Ohio Consolidated before the PUCO is Pickaway County. Among those who have taken a leading role in the legal battle are three attorneys—George Gerhardt, representing Circleville; Harry Margulis, representing South Bloomfield; and Richard Penn, who is spokesman for a cooperative county committee.

EMERGENCY relief was requested after the company learned its application for a $742,448 rate hike could not be slated for public hearing until late next summer due to other commission business.

Preceding Boles was the first company witness, Consulting Engineer Gustav Hirsch who testified that he found the company's Ohio property to have a reproductive value of $11,951,573.

Ohio Consolidated is about the third largest independent telephone company in the state. It serves some 22 counties, mostly in Southern Ohio.

The company claimed that earnings had dropped from $474,892 to $168,301 in about two years and Boles told the crowded hearing that continued present earnings would "jeopardize the future issuance and sale of securities."

in the American hotel, 45 minutes after the robbery.

The Canter girl had entered the drug store about 10 p. m. Monday, and had approached the store manager and a clerk.

She had one hand in a pocket of her coat, and a gun-like bulge was noticeable. She demanded the money from the cash register.

The girl used a comb in her pocket as pretense of a gun.

In the hotel room, police found $101.18 of the missing loot. Later at police headquarters, Norman Kutler, Rexall drug store manager, identified the girl as the one who had staged the "holdup." The manager had reported that $143 was taken.

Police continued the search Wednesday for the remainder of the missing loot—about $41, which could not be accounted for.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. Name of plume will be used if requested.

Editor, The Herald:
"Put" Sandles, manager of the Clark County fair, in address on Pumpkin Show given before the Kiwanis Club Monday night, used exceedingly poor judgment. His talk was before a group that might be an asset to our fair board.

The 45th Annual Pumpkin Show just over had the greatest number of entries this year that we have had any time during the past twenty years.

We regret that Mr. Sandles was not acquainted with this fact.

At the time Mr. Sandles was connected with the State Department of Agriculture he was in a position to pass upon and see that the Pumpkin Show performed proper functions in order to get the $300 allocated and paid by the county as well as premiums paid with state funds.

Under present setup no state or taxpayers money is allocated to Pumpkin Show.

The attendance for this show has increased to such an extent that our City was taxed to the limit in taking care of visitors.

As a special request, we have asked for state checkers to check our show and as a compliance have received O.K.

This is no official duty but we are satisfied with games operated by concessionaries holding state licenses.

The local fair board has repeatedly asked the voters of Pickaway County to grant a one mill levy for the purpose of erecting a Grand Stand upon the fair grounds which has been denied.

In my opinion such remarks would again defeat further improvements which are badly needed by our fair board.

The "Kill the Pumpkin Show" idea is far remote and backfires like a flooded machine.

When one attraction has an attendance in one day equivalent to four days of the other, the handicap is too great for immediate defeat.

The Pumpkin Show, growing by leaps and bounds, meets requirements of our community and visitors, and Trustees of the show are here to protect the "suckers."

MacArthur deplored what he termed a lack of interest on the part of the U.S. towards Asia, and said our political stature has been impaired by "a succession of diplomatic blunders abroad." He declared the present administration has contributed to the building of Soviet military strength through leniency.

In addition, the general noted what he called growing anxiety at home over disclosure of graft and corruption. Government leaders, he continued, "seem either apathetic, indifferent, or in seeming condonation."

Game Warden Confused On Squirrel Carcass

A Fayette County game warden is probably boning up on his squirrel lessons.

Earlier this week Irvin Patrick, acting on a tip from neighbors, got a search warrant to look for squirrels in the home of Floyd Wickell in Mt. Sterling who was accused of jumping the gun on the season.

He was jubilant when he found a small frozen carcass and ordered Wickell to court in London for a hearing on a charge of shooting squirrel out of season.

But Wickell showed Tuesday that the "squirrel" was actually a South American chinchilla which had died. Wickell had skinned the $700 animal and frozen the carcass to send to specialists for an autopsy.

Wickell owns one of Ohio's few chinchilla herds.

PUCO Suggests Utility Get Loan For Its Fixup

The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio Wednesday raised the possibility of a $150,000 loan instead of a half-million dollar emergency rate boost to get the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. out of financial trouble.

During a commission hearing in Columbus, Commission Member Ralph Winter asked a company witness if Ohio Consolidated could not borrow the money needed to meet debt interest and dividend requirements.

The witness, Ewing Boles, president of the firm, replied that it was not his opinion such means of meeting the problem would be the most advisable.

Among the several areas fighting Ohio Consolidated before the PUCO is Pickaway County. Among those who have taken a leading role in the legal battle are three attorneys—George Gerhardt, representing Circleville; Harry Margulis, representing South Bloomfield; and Richard Penn, who is spokesman for a cooperative county committee.

EMERGENCY relief was requested after the company learned its application for a $742,448 rate hike could not be slated for public hearing until late next summer due to other commission business.

Preceding Boles was the first company witness, Consulting Engineer Gustav Hirsch, who testified that he found the company's Ohio property to have a reproductive value of $11,951,573.

Ohio Consolidated is about the third largest independent telephone company in the state. It serves some 22 counties, mostly in Southern Ohio.

The company claimed that earnings had dropped from $474,892 to $168,301 in about two years and Boles told the crowded hearing that continued present earnings would "jeopardize the future issuance and sale of securities."

in the American hotel, 45 minutes after the robbery.

The Canter girl had entered the drug store about 10 p. m. Monday, and had approached the store manager and a clerk.

She had one hand in a pocket of her coat, and a gun-like bulge was noticeable. She demanded the money from the cash register.

The girl used a comb in her pocket as pretense of a gun.

In the hotel room police found $101.18 of the missing loot. Later at police headquarters, Norman Kutler, Rexall drug store manager, identified the girl as the one who had staged the "holdup." The manager had reported that $143 was taken.

Police continued the search Wednesday for the remainder of the missing loot—about $41, which could not be accounted for.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. No demerit will be used if requested.

Editor, The Herald:

"Put" Sandles, manager of the Clark County fair, in address on Pumpkin Show given before the Kiwanis Club Monday night, used exceedingly poor judgment. His talk was before a group that might be an asset to our fair board.

The 45th Annual Pumpkin Show just over had the greatest number of entries this year that we have had any time during the past twenty years.

We regret that Mr. Sandles was not acquainted with this fact.

At the time Mr. Sandles was connected with the State Department of Agriculture he was in a position to pass upon and see that the Pumpkin Show performed proper functions in order to get the $100 allocated and paid by the county as well as premiums paid with state funds.

Under present setup no state or taxpayers money is allocated to Pumpkin Show.

The attendance for this show has increased to such an extent that our City was taxed to the limit in taking care of visitors.

As a special request, we have asked for state checkers to check our show and as a compliance have received O.K.

This is no official duty but we are satisfied with games operated by concessionaries holding state licenses.

The local fair board has repeatedly asked the voters of Pickaway County to grant a one mill levy for the purpose of erecting a Grand Stand upon the fair grounds which has been denied.

In my opinion such remarks would again defeat further improvements which are badly needed by our fair board.

The "Kill the Pumpkin Show" idea is far remote and backfires like a flooded machine.

When one attraction has an attendance in one day equivalent to four days of the other, the handicap is too great for immediate defeat.

The Pumpkin Show, growing by leaps and bounds, meets requirements of our community and visitors, and Trustees of the show are here to protect the "suckers".

Ike-For-President Crew Meets To Start Campaign

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Republican leaders of the Eisenhower-for-President drive agreed today on details of national and state organizations and said they would begin "immediately."

The announcement followed a lengthy meeting between Sen. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, Ex-Sen. Harry Darby of Kansas and a representative of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Duff said details of the Eisenhower-for-President campaign organization would be announced "shortly." He added:

"We were not alone in this meeting, but it was agreed that no further statement would be made until this organizational setup is arranged within a few days. Sen. Darby and I will make this announcement in due course, as indicated."

THE MEETING had been unannounced and comment to newsmen was limited to the two paragraph formal statement.

Neither Duff nor Darby would disclose the names of others attending the session. It was understood, however, that at least one representative of Dewey was present.

The results of the meeting were expressed in just one sentence: "The meeting lasted for several hours and agreement was reached on methods of organization which will be proceeded with immediately and a national and state setup made."

THE THREE men represented all three of the Republican factions seeking to win the Republican nomination for Eisenhower—either by inducing the European commander to announce his candidacy or by a draft.

Darby, who heads up the Kansas Eisenhower forces, came to Washington for the specific purpose of bringing the movement's plans to a head through creation of a campaign committee.

His meeting with Duff was set up without advance announcement.

Duff conferred a week ago in New York with Dewey and other Republicans in that state now working for the Eisenhower cause.

It was from New York that the Pennsylvania senator talked by telephone with Eisenhower himself. And it was following that call that the general told newsmen he would not "interfere" with friends who thought they knew what he might do.

It appeared to political observers that chairmanship of the Eisenhower campaign movement most likely would come to rest on either Duff or Sen. Carlson, (R) Kan., who is now in Europe and plans to confer there with the general. Duff has a conference with Ike set for sometime in December.

Teen Tips

It's not too soon to begin thinking of Santa time, if there's likely to be a boy's name on your Christmas gift list.

If you start soon, there'll be plenty of time for the best gift of all—one made with your own little hands.

How are you with a crochet hook? If you're a whiz or even if you're a fumbling beginner, it's easy to make a clever varsity cap for your favorite date, your brother or for girl friends. It's new, and 'teeners all call it terrific—fun to make, too.

Another good idea is to make a pair of these little varsity caps—one for your "steady" date and one for yourself. Or one for your favorite girl friend and one for yourself.

Make them in school colors, of course. They're made of inexpensive all-purpose yarn—one color for the crown and the other color for the little visor and buttons.

For a final touch, very special, make a matching school letter or your class numerals to attach to the front of the crown.

How do you like the idea? If you don't know a crochet hook from a drum major's baton, now's a good time to learn, because this varsity cap is made with simple basic stitches. Your mother can probably show you how to do it, or an instructor in the store where you buy the yarn can probably help.

So what are you waiting for?

(For free crocheting directions for this easy-to-make varsity cap, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper.)

Sheriff Awaits Judge's Decision

CHARDON, Nov. 14—Geauga County Common Pleas Judge William K. Thomas is expected to rule today on a motion by Geauga County Sheriff Stuart M. Harland's attorneys that Harland be acquitted of prisoner-pampering charges.

Harland is charged with pampering George Gordon, former Pettibone Gambling Club operator, while the latter was a prisoner for a 60-day period. Harland is said to have permitted Gordon to make a number of telephone calls at times when the law required him to be confined to his cell.

Bartender Knifed In Cafe Brawl

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14—Cleveland police are holding three men for investigation today as a result of a brawl and a stabbing at a west-side cafe.

Robert Murphy, 24, a bartender in the cafe, is in Cleveland Lutheran hospital where he is recovering from stab wounds in the abdomen and his right arm.

State-Owned Car Problem Slated For New Probe

COLUMBUS, Nov. 14—Governor Lausche has turned to private industry in an effort to find a solution to the problem of the abuse of the privilege of using state-owned cars.

The governor said he was establishing a four-man committee headed by State Purchasing Agent Jack Bush, to develop a "systematic method of assigning autos" for necessary state assignments. The other members of the committee will be the highway department executive assigned to motor vehicle maintenance and two experts from private industry.

The governor said he was asking the president of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. to designate committee members to serve with the state officials. Both companies operated huge fleets in their business.

Lausche declared that a car should be assigned "only when the economy of the situation justifies it." He revealed he has already asked the Council of State Governments to forward to him whatever information they may have gathered from the federal government and other states on the assignment of cars to public employees.

Lausche pointed out that the problem started at the top with six elected officials, 12 directors, the officials of the six state universities, and divisional heads of the various departments.

The governor stated there "ought to be a constant rule applied," and indicated that he favored the assignment of a small medium or large car on the basis of the size of the job to be done rather than the prestige of the official involved.

Gus Hall Wins Delay In Hearing Before Court

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Communist Party Leader Gus Hall has won another delay in a hearing to punish him for fleeing a subversive conspiracy conviction.

The burly 41-year-old Hall, who was seized by Mexico City police Oct. 1 after failing to surrender in July to serve a five-year sentence, asked for and received an adjournment until Nov. 21.

Defense Attorney Harry Sacher, who defended Hall and ten other convicted Communist leaders, represented the defendant in the contempt hearing before Federal Judge Edward A. Conger yesterday.

U. S. Attorney Myles Lane vigorously objected to the postponement and asked for an immediate hearing. He indicated he may call as witnesses some of the Mexican police who captured the fugitive.

Punishment for criminal contempt of federal court is left to the discretion of the judge in charge.

Three other top party leaders also fled with Hall and are still at large. The four fugitives forfeited $80,000 in bail.

Make them in school colors, of course. They're made of inexpensive all-purpose yarn—one color for the crown and the other color for the little visor and buttons.

For a final touch, very special, make a matching school letter or your class numerals to attach to the front of the crown.

How do you like the idea? If you don't know a crochet hook from a drum major's baton, now's a good time to learn, because this varsity cap is made with simple basic stitches. Your mother can probably show you how to do it, or an instructor in the store where you buy the yarn can probably help.

So what are you waiting for?

(For free crocheting directions for this easy-to-make varsity cap, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper.)

Sheriff Awaits Judge's Decision

CHARDON, Nov. 14 — Geauga County Common Pleas Judge William K. Thomas is expected to rule today on a motion by Geauga County Sheriff Stuart M. Harland's attorneys that Harland be acquitted of prisoner-pampering charges.

Harland is charged with pampering George Gordon, former Pettibone Gambling Club operator, while the latter was a prisoner for a 60-day period. Harland is said to have permitted Gordon to make a number of telephone calls at times when the law required him to be confined to his cell.

Bartender Knifed In Cafe Brawl

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14 — Cleveland police are holding three men for investigation today as a result of a brawl and a stabbing at a west-side cafe.

Robert Murphy, 24, a bartender in the cafe, is in Cleveland Lutheran hospital where he is recovering from stab wounds in the abdomen and his right arm.

State-Owned Car Problem Slated For New Probe

COLUMBUS, Nov. 14—Governor Lausche has turned to private industry in an effort to find a solution to the problem of the abuse of the privilege of using state-owned cars.

The governor said he was establishing a four-man committee headed by State Purchasing Agent Jack Bush, to develop a "systematic method of assigning autos" for necessary state assignments. The other members of the committee will be the highway department executive assigned to motor vehicle maintenance and two experts from private industry.

The governor said he was asking the president of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. to designate committee members to serve with the state officials. Both companies operated huge fleets in their business.

Lausche declared that a car should be assigned "only when the economy of the situation justifies it." He revealed he has already asked the Council of State Governments to forward to him whatever information they may have gathered from the federal government and other states on the assignment of cars to public employees.

Lausche pointed out that the problem started at the top with six elected officials, 12 directors, the officials of the six state universities, and divisional heads of various departments.

The governor stated there "ought to be a constant rule applied," and indicated that he favored the assignment of a small medium or large car on the basis of the size of the job to be done rather than the prestige of the official involved.

Gus Hall Wins Delay In Hearing Before Court

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Communist Party Leader Gus Hall has won another delay in a hearing to punish him for fleeing a subversive conspiracy conviction.

The burly 41-year-old Hall, who was seized by Mexico City police Oct. 1 after failing to surrender in July to serve a five-year sentence, asked for and received an adjournment until Nov. 21.

Defense Attorney Harry Sacher, who defended Hall and ten other convicted Communist leaders, represented the defendant in the contempt hearing before Federal Judge Edward A. Conger yesterday.

U. S. Attorney Myles Lane vigorously objected to the postponement and asked for an immediate hearing. He indicated he may call as witnesses some of the Mexican police who captured the fugitive.

Punishment for criminal contempt of federal court is left to the discretion of the judge in charge.

Three other top party leaders also fled with Hall and are still at large. The four fugitives forfeited $80,000 in bail.

FULL-BLOWN WAR

THOSE who have been accustomed to referring to the fighting in Korea as a local police action are now forced to admit, perhaps with a bit of embarrassment, that it has developed into a full-blown war. U.S. forces are in conflict with virtually the entire resources of Red China, which has substantial aid from Russia.

The Reds have unlimited manpower, plus tanks, artillery and all the necessary munitions of war, which is proof that the Reds, at least, do not regard the fighting as a local engagement.

While ceasefire negotiations continue with little prospect of definite results, the fighting in recent days has resulted in reverses for U.S. forces, and the Reds are showing renewed strength and determination.

There has been some doubt about the accuracy of reports of tremendous Red losses in the past, which have given the total as 1,500,000 or more. The enemy is showing no indication of a desire for peace and the war will undoubtedly continue through the winter.

Whatever political or diplomatic reasons may have prompted calling it a police action are not now realistic. The Korean war has been under way for 18 months, with U.S. losses approximately 100,000, South Korean losses more than twice that, and other nations on our side reporting approximately 5,000 casualties.

In less than a year and a half the war in Korea has become the fourth largest war in the history of the United States, and there is no end in sight.

WILL VOTERS REMEMBER?

DURING the speculation over the outcome of next year's presidential election, and the identities of the probable candidates, leaders in both parties must occasionally think—gloomily or gleefully—of the effect on the fortunes of all the candidates of the scores of scandals and accusations which have marked recent months.

The real question is the possible effect of these disclosures on the voters. Will they remember what they read and hear a year before voting time? If political history can be depended upon for the answer it is extremely doubtful if recent disclosures will have a major impact upon next year's election results.

"Turn the rascals out" has never been a potent battle cry. Party affiliation is a strong tie, while the so-called independents will look as usual to see which side of the bread is buttered the most generously.

WASHINGTON—With a stroke of the pen the Army has added thousands of well-trained soldiers to its fighting forces, without having to go to the country's draft boards.

Under a new order, all English-speaking Puerto Rican soldiers are now available for assignment to units wherever the United States Army is stationed.

Puerto Ricans formerly were limited to service on their own island and the Panama Canal Zone except during actual wartime. Col. Morton F. Townes, commanding United States Army forces in Puerto Rico, attributes the change in policy to the "outstanding combat record" of the island troops and the "excellent impression" they made during recent maneuvers.

The Army has defined as English-speaking any soldier who can "express thoughts verbally on commonplace topics with reasonable coherency, or who can interpret or carry on a normal conversation in the English language."

These Days

The Romans had a high civil official called a censor whose business it was to tell the truth. Marcus Cato, a plain and rugged man, aspired to the post, but the aristocrats and the rich and those who preferred a smooth life were opposed to his candidacy.

They brought forth a number of very fine candidates, soft spoken and gentle, who made promises to the people to give them an indulgent and easy government.

Cato would have no competition with them. He delivered tough speeches and advised the people to choose not the gentlest but the roughest of physicians. He painted no glowing picture of himself nor lied about his intentions. Of this, Plutarch says:

"He (Cato) added, too, that he saw all the rest endeavouring after the office with ill intent, because they were afraid of those who would exercise it justly, as they ought. And so truly great and so worthy of great men to be its leaders was, it would seem, the Roman people, that they did not fear the severity and grim countenance of Cato, but rejecting those smooth promises who were ready to do all things to ingratiate themselves, they took him."

It is interesting to note that all the same arguments against candidates were used in ancient times that are used against them today. For instance, they say that Senator Taft lacks beauty of appearance. That he does. He would never win a beauty contest at Atlantic City, nor does he have the charm of manner or the gracefulness of personality of a Franklin D. Roosevelt or a General Eisenhower. He is a homespun sort of personality who talks like a vigorous Yankee—and thinks with all the intellectual toughness of one.

He makes no attempt to paint roseate pictures of the world, his country, or even of himself. Like Cato, he gathers the facts and presents them and if they are unpalatable, it might make him unpopular for saying what is undesirable. Yet, if that is the way it needs to be said, he says it so, and it might have saved us our 100,000 in Korea had we listened.

Perhaps had Taft tailored himself for popularity, he might have been President by now and the country would have been saved many an ordeal, but then he would not have been Bob Taft, but a figurine that some trifle painted to fit a mood.

Too many of our politicians substitute glamour for integrity, mannerisms for graciousness, the quip and gag for knowledge and wisdom, and thus we get foul government in which corruption vies with chicanery. Think of what a low estate we have sunk to if any public person can make such a speech as Captain Victor Hunt Harding, executive director of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, permitted himself to say to a meeting:

"A great many government workers may feel that they have been blanketed in under civil service. But, if the Republicans get control in the future, they'll find the blanket yanked out, and they'll shiver."

Then he continued:

(It is) "unfortunate that many who came here as a result of the Democratic Party have so completely forgotten this and now feel they secured their positions because of their own ability and intelligence."

There it is, the degeneracy of a nation. Not ability and intelligence matter, but loyalty to a party, obedience to the dictates of those who prefer to give something for nothing rather than to get a dollar's worth for a dollar paid, which means service and responsibility.

CHAPTER TWENTY

NEXT morning, on his rounds, Mr. Yearby's special reported to Peter that her patient had had a quiet night.

At eight, the manager himself came up to surgical, making no pretense that this was one of his usual tours of inspection. With him was Dr. Silverstein, a staff surgeon. The supervisor and Dr. Shepherd greeted this delegation; the surgical intern hovered near.

"May I have Mr. Yearby's chart?" asked Dr. Stoetzel.

"It's in his room, sir. He's on special duty."

"I meant the ward report."

"Yes, sir." A nurse fetched this, and the supervisor passed it to Dr. Stoetzel. He studied it, took out his pen. "Dr. Silverstein is replacing Dr. Butcher on this case," he said mildly. Before anyone could catch his breath, he continued. "Come with us, please, Shepherd."

Peter saw Burke at the far end of the corridor. The medical residents' hands were folded in an attitude of prayer. Peter clenched his teeth; this was no time to laugh.

Mr. Yearby's eyes brightened at the flood of white linen which swept into his room. "This is more like it!" he said happily. "Good morning, young man," he greeted Peter. "How are you this morning?"

Peter stood at the foot of his bed, smiling. "I'm fine, sir. May I present Dr. Stoetzel and Dr. Silverstein?"

"How are you, gentlemen?" chirped Mr. Yearby. "Won't you sit down?"

"We haven't time," said Dr. Stoetzel. "I'm the manager of the Boone Group, Mr. Yearby, and—"

"You got a good hospital here. Slept like a top last night."

"That's fine, Mr. Yearby, yesterday we made some extensive tests, and—"

"Yes, sir! That young doctor there is thorough!"

"Er—yes. It's his business to be." A faint rim of ice cracked upon Dr. Stoetzel's voice. "Our tests showed, Mr. Yearby, that a certain condition exists of which Dr. Butcher was not aware..."

"Cancer?" asked the old man warily, his voice quivering.

"Oh, no, sir! And it probably isn't a new condition at all. Or have you known that you had diabetes?"

"Me?"

"Yes, sir. Did any doctor ever tell you that?"

"No, sir, they didn't. But I haven't had much truck with doctors. Last one was an insurance examination 15 years ago."

"No diabetes then?"

"Guess not. They let me take out another fifty thousand."

Dr. Silverstein laughed. "But didn't Dr. Butcher..."

"Now, don't blame him, either. My wife called him Sunday for this little trouble I have..." His glance at the nurse showed his unwillingness to speak more frankly, and he said the only thing to do was to come in here and let him make me more comfortable. I asked him if it meant the knife, and he said not much of a knife. But there was to be a knife!"

"Er—yes," said Dr. Stoetzel. "Has Dr. Butcher been in this morning?" he asked the special.

"No, sir. He phoned and said he was tied up..."

"I see. I talked to him yesterday afternoon, Mr. Yearby. Now, of course, you may go to another hospital..."

"You putting me out of here?"

"No, sir. I'm offering you a choice. If you decide to stay here—"

"I'm comfortable."

"All right, then. We—Dr. Butcher and I—have come to the agreement that your case had better be turned over to Dr. Silverstein here. He is one of our staff surgeons and will take good care of you."

"If I'm changin' doctors, I'd just as leave have the boy yonder."

Peter took a deep breath. "Oh, but, Mr. Yearby—"

"You're interested in me, and if you found out that I have diabetes and Butcher didn't know it, it stands to reason you're a better doctor."

"Er—yes," said the manager. "And Dr. Shepherd will attend you, sir. But it is our practice to put a staff surgeon in charge of a case, not a resident."

"If you have a personal preference in surgeons..." offered Dr. Silverstein.

"No, no, I got nothing against you. And if the boy says this is the way to do it, I'm agreeable."

He waited for Peter's nod of indorsement. So did Stoetzel and Silverstein, and Peter was most awfully glad that Burke was not in the room. He could not have gone through the rest of the ritual had he been present.

After another 15 minutes of more intimate attention to Mr. Yearby, who was in a more difficult situation than he seemed to realize, Dr. Silverstein and Dr. Shepherd joined the manager again in the hall. "I want a word with you, Shepherd," said Stoetzel, leading the way to a small waiting room, closing the door behind them.

"I suppose," he said after a moment of thought, "that you understand what we are doing, and have done, for Mr. Yearby. You can go on and follow routine procedure, with especial attention to Dr. Silverstein's orders."

"Yes, sir." The palms of Peter's hands were wet.

"Yearby seems quite pleased with your care of him," said Silverstein.

"He's lonely—and old—and scared."

The Army is taking dogs again, but for the time being married dogs are exempt.

In the ranks of the humans we are up to the married ones and passing on rapidly to those with children.

This has become necessary because once again we are embarked on a great crusade and someday may find out what it is.

But there is no doubt that we are in a period of grave emergency just as the President said before he lit out for Florida and a six-week vacation.

It isn't quite grave enough to have kept the port of New York from being tied up or to guarantee that the railroads will keep running or steel will keep pouring, but it's a grave emergency.

And during this period work has been redoubled on guided missiles. In Korea it has been found that the best guided missiles are between 19 and 25.

Howard Lindsay, the playwright, is punctilious about his business engagements but on the forgetful side when it comes to social functions. He has been known to wander off from one of his own dinner parties for a brief nap and then forget to come downstairs again.

Names of friends and acquaintances frequently elude him. When in doubt he calls everybody Herb, except his friend Herb Mayes, whom he hails as Jerry. For years he engaged in a bitter feud with an actor who had let him down and wouldn't stay in the same room with him when they accidentally met at a party. Then one night Lindsay's wife, Dorothy Stickney, was amazed to find him in close and harmonious conversation with the actor at the other end of a Hollywood soiree. The conference ended in a burst of laughter and Lindsay clapped the actor on the back. "I wonder what caused Howard to forgive him?" thought Mrs. Lindsay. At this moment Lindsay whispered hoarsely in her ear, "Who was that fellow I just was talking to, anyhow?"

CHAPTER TWENTY

NEXT morning, on his rounds, Mr. Yearby's special reported to Peter that her patient had had a quiet night.

At eight, the manager himself came up to surgical, making no pretense that this was one of his usual tours of inspection. With him was Dr. Silverstein, a Staff surgeon. The supervisor and Dr. Shepherd greeted this delegation; the surgical intern hovered near.

"May I have Mr. Yearby's chart?" asked Dr. Stoezel.

"It's in his room, sir. He's on special duty."

"I meant the ward report."

"Yes, sir." A nurse fetched this, and the supervisor passed it to Dr. Stoezel. He studied it, took out his pen. "Dr. Silverstein is replacing Dr. Butcher on this case," he said mildly. Before anyone could catch his breath, he continued.

"Come with us, please, Shepherd."

Peter saw Burke at the far end of the corridor. The medical resident's hands were folded in an attitude of prayer. Peter clenched his teeth; this was no time to laugh!

Mr. Yearby's eyes brightened at the flood of white linen which swept into his room. "This is more like!" he said happily. "Good morning, young man," he greeted Peter. "How are you this morning?"

Peter stood at the foot of his bed, smiling. "I'm fine, sir. May I present Dr. Stoezel and Dr. Silverstein?"

"How are you, gentlemen?" chirped Mr. Yearby. "Won't you sit down?"

"We haven't time," said Dr. Stoezel. "I'm the manager of the Boone Group, Mr. Yearby, and—" "You got a good hospital here. Slept like a top last night."

"That's fine, Mr. Yearby, yesterday we made some extensive tests, and—"

"Yes, sir! That young doctor there is thorough!"

"Er—yes. It's his business to be. A faint rim of ice cracked upon Dr. Stoezel's voice. "Our tests showed, Mr. Yearby, that a certain condition exists of which Dr. Butcher was not aware..."

"Cancer?" asked the old man warily, his voice quivering.

"Oh, no, sir! And it probably isn't a new condition at all. Or have you known that you had diabetes?"

"Me?"

"Yes, sir. Did any doctor ever tell you that?"

"No, sir, they didn't. But I haven't had much truck with doctors. Last one was an insurance examination 15 years ago."

"No diabetes then?"

"Guess not. They let me take out another fifty thousand."

Dr. Silverstein laughed. "But didn't Dr. Butcher..."

"Now, don't blame him, either. My wife called him Sunday for this little trouble I have..." His glance at the nurse showed his unwillingness to speak more frankly, "and he said the only thing to do was to come in here and let him make me more comfortable. I asked him if it meant the knife, and he said not much of a knife. But there was to be a knife!"

"Er—yes," said Dr. Stoezel. "Has Dr. Butcher been in this morning?" he asked the special.

"No, sir. He phoned and said he was tied up..."

"I see. I talked to him yesterday afternoon, Mr. Yearby. Now, of course, you may go to another hospital..."

"You putting me out of here?"

"No, sir. I'm offering you a choice. If you decide to stay here—"

"I'm comfortable."

"All right, then. We—Dr. Butcher and I—have come to the agreement that your case had better be turned over to Dr. Silverstein here. He is one of our Staff surgeons and will take good care of you."

"If I'm changing doctors, I'd just as leave have the boy yonder."

Peter took a deep breath. "Oh, but, Mr. Yearby—" "You're interested in me, and if you found out that I have diabetes and Butcher didn't know it, it stands to reason you're a better doctor."

"Er—yes," said the manager. "And Dr. Shepherd will attend you, sir. But it is our practice to put a Staff surgeon in charge of a case, not a resident."

"If you have a personal preference in surgeons..." offered Dr. Silverstein.

"No, no, I got nothing against you. And if the boy says this is the way to do it, I'm agreeable."

He waited for Peter's nod of endorsement. So did Stoezel and Silverstein, and Peter was most awfully glad that Burke was not in the room. He could not have gone through the rest of the ritual had he been present.

After another 15 minutes of more intimate attention to Mr. Yearby, who was in a more difficult situation than he seemed to realize, Dr. Silverstein and Dr. Shepherd joined the manager again in the hall. "I want a word with you, Shepherd," said Stoezel, leading the way to a small waiting room, closing the door behind them.

"I suppose," he said after a moment of thought, "that you understand what we are doing, and have done for Mr. Yearby. You can go on and follow routine procedure, with special attention to Dr. Silverstein's orders."

"Yes, sir." The palms of Peter's hands were wet.

"Yearby seems quite pleased with your care of him," said Silverstein.

"He's lonely—and old—and scared."

"Yes, of course. But I am glad to note that you managed this difficult situation, leaving the patient entirely satisfied," said Dr. Stoezel. "At least."

Peter gulped.

"Dr. Butcher feels somewhat differently," continued the manager dryly.

"Well—" "I know. We won't discuss Butcher. I think he's entirely out of the picture. But there is one point, Shepherd, that I'd like you to clear up."

"Yes, sir?" (Here it came!)

"In our discussion—in stating his reasons for the—er—unusual request he made yesterday about Mr. Yearby, Dr. Butcher mentioned a certain appendicitis case—a diagnosis which you had made, or perhaps had failed to make."

"Oh, I can explain that sir."

"I'm not interested in the case as such. If it was a hospital case, the record will show me everything I have to know. My interest lies particularly in how a courtesy attending found out so much about that case, or any case beyond his personal contacts. Did you talk to him about it?"

"No, sir, I didn't. He mentioned it to me yesterday, but wouldn't let me say anything about it."

"In your defense, you mean?"

"Well, sir, he had the wrong impression—" "Who gave him the impression he had? That's what I want to know!"

Peter took a deep breath. "Did you ask Dr. Butcher?"

"I'm asking you."

The bear whose tail Peter still held in his sweating hand had grown tremendously over night. "Are you ordering me to tell you, sir?"

"I'm asking you. Isn't that enough? I don't want a lot of blab-mouths working in this hospital. We can't avoid a certain amount of gossip, but when I can trace a scandalous story down to one person I'm going to try to do it!"

"I'd hate to get somebody else in trouble, sir."

Dr. Stoezel looked at him as if completely baffled. "You're in trouble yourself."

"Yes, sir. But the record shows that what I did was all right. And I'd rather—"

"If I were you, Shepherd," said the manager, more kindly than that, "I'd give this some thought. And I want you at the Staff meeting this afternoon. Butcher will be there; his privileges in the Group are at stake, and he'll defend himself in any way he can. You'd better have your own case lined up."

"Yes, sir."

"That's good advice, Pete," said Silverstein as he followed the departing manager.

Try, Stop Me

Howard Lindsay, the playwright, is punctilious about his business engagements but on the forgetful side when it comes to social functions. He has been known to wander off from one of his own dinner parties for a brief nap and then forget to come downstairs again.

Names of friends and acquaintances frequently elude him. When in doubt he calls everybody Herb, except his friend Herb Mayes, whom he hails as Jerry. For years he engaged in a bitter feud with an actor who had let him down and wouldn't stay in the same room with him when they accidentally met at a party. Then one night Lindsay's wife, Dorothy Stickney, was amazed to find him in close and harmonious conversation with the actor at the other end of a Hollywood soiree. The conference ended in a burst of laughter as Lindsay clapped the actor on the back. "I wonder what caused Howard to forgive him?" thought Mrs. Lindsay. At this moment Lindsay whispered hoarsely in her ear, "Who was that fellow I just was talking to, anyhow?"

Army Acquires Thousands Of Puerto Rican Soldiers | Golf Course for Marines | But No Lights for Tents

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—With a stroke of the pen the Army has added thousands of well-trained soldiers to its fighting forces, without having to go to the country's draft boards.

Under a new order, all English-speaking Puerto Rican soldiers are now available for assignment to units wherever the United States Army is stationed.

Puerto Ricans formerly were limited to service on their own island and the Panama Canal Zone except during actual war. Col. Morton F. Townes, commanding United States Army forces in Puerto Rico, attributes the change in policy to the "outstanding combat record" of the island troops and the "excellent impression" they made during recent maneuvers.

The Army has defined as English-speaking any soldier who can "express thoughts verbally on commonplace topics with reasonable coherency, or who can interpret or carry on a normal conversation in the English language."

Senator McCarthy • MCCARTHY'S CREDO—Visitors to the office of Senator Joseph McCarthy (R) Wisconsin, one of the most controversial figures in the upper chamber, often are surprised to find the wall opposite his desk hung with a huge-framed quotation from Abraham Lincoln.

This is the quote which McCarthy has mounted for constant reminder:

"If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business. I do the very best I know how—the very best I can, and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, then ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

• GOLF VERSUS DARKNESS—The Senate preparedness subcommittee hopes the armed forces will use more common sense and strike a better balance in its recreational facilities than its investigators found at Camp Pendleton, Cal., the Marine base.

Probers noted that the camp had a golf course and a riding stable where service men and their dependents have free use of 40 horses. However, it also found that some Marines had to use the latrines if they wanted to read at night.

Sensors reported that these men lived in tents that had no lighting facilities. They said the men used the latrines for reading because the lights stayed on there for several hours after dark.

The committee found no fault with needed recreational facilities but senators slightly questioned the quantity of amusement centers at Camp Lejeune, N. C., where there are 15 baseball fields, 16 basketball courts, two 18-hole golf courses, 10 football gridirons and various other sports playgrounds.

• SHORTAGES HIT CAPITOL—It may be hard to believe but Capitol Hill is having its troubles with shortages, too.

The architect's office reports the target date for completing conversion from direct to alternating current may be postponed to 1954. The reason: They can't get the needed materials as fast as expected.

10 Per Cent Increase in

• BIG DINNER TABLES—Americans should have more of most foods during the coming year despite the big bite of military and foreign aid needs.

Agriculture department officials are talking about a 10 per cent increase in beef and veal, as well as bigger supplies of lamb and mutton and a large pork crop.

They figure the result will mean 144 pounds of meat per American, compared to the 140 pounds the average American is due to eat in 1951.

Moral Use Of Atomic Bomb Discussed By Couples Club

"Moral Implications of the Atomic Bomb," was the subject of a discussion presented by Mrs. Donald Mitchell and W. A. Downing at a meeting of newly-organized Couples Club of Geneva Fellowship of Circleville Presbyterian church.

Meeting Sunday evening in the social rooms of the church, the group heard Mrs. Mitchell present the affirmative side of the question and Downing giving views of several authorities, representing the negative side of the issue.

Mrs. Mitchell said in part, "The most peace loving of us, must recognize our moral right and duty, on occasion, to take up arms for defense."

"So if the time comes—God grant it never may—that we must choose between dropping the bomb and losing all that makes life on this planet worth while let us use a weapon big enough to insure victory and defend the free world with the confidence that we are morally right."

Downing, in presenting his views, said, "Too many of us think of atomic energy as only a destructive force, forgetting its great and amazing potential in the fields of medical research."

"In the last 200 years, the development of science has been like the building, stone on stone, of a great cathedral. Now that we are ready to crown our cathedral of science with the dome of atomic energy, are we going to wreck the entire magnificent structure with the dome?" Downing concluded.

A general discussion followed the two talks with members putting questions to the speakers.

Ed Grigg, presided at the business meeting when an annual project for purchasing and decorating a Christmas tree for the primary department of the church, was instituted.

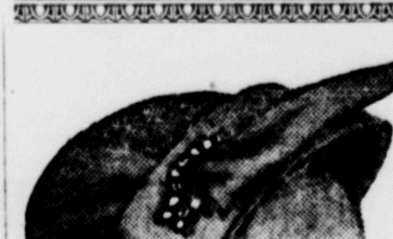

Thomas Houghton conducted a devotional service based on Armistice Day and refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boerner.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

EISENHOWER'S POSITION

Majority editorial opinion is that General Eisenhower will, in time, state definitely his willingness to be the Republican Party's nominee for President. But a very large minority of editors believes that the general is still completely undecided about the matter. — The large majority feels that the precedence over political state ments now which Eisenhower gives his job of rebuilding Western Europe's defenses will enhance his political position. But a considerable minority of editors sees here an implied comparison of the importance of the presidency and NATO work, and thinks the General may be risking "overdoing the act."

SAVANNAH (Ga.) News (Ind.): "It is significant... that when we compare Eisenhower's statements and his attitude this year with what he said and how he conducted himself in 1948, he seems to be willing to run in 1952, if the sentiment is strong enough for him to do so. In 1948 he was bluntly definite in his insistence that he had no desire to make a bid for the post of chief executive. This year his words are much more conciliatory, and they carry a note of a willingness to offer if the demand is made upon him."

WILMINGTON (Del.) News (Ind.): "Eisenhower said he would not be a candidate in 1948 in the absence of 'overriding' reasons capable of changing his belief that a professional soldier lacks the training required for high political office. . . . As for the arguments that might persuade him, they would have to include proof that the foreign policy he undoubtedly believes in... is in danger. He would also have to be convinced that those who are supporting him are representative of enough Republicans so that a 'draft' would be the real thing."

JACKSONVILLE Union (Ind.-Dem.): "Despite the fact that he has demurred time and again when approached on the subject of his Presidential ambitions, the General traveled about the country when he was serving as active head of Columbia University making speeches which definitely had a political taint. . . . He may not want to be called a politician, but he certainly acts like one. 'Ike' has a choice to make as to whether he is going to be a soldier or a politician, and an increasing number of people believe that he is not adding to his stature as a man by trying to play the end against the middle."

EL PASO Times (Dem.): "General Eisenhower will be remembered as a bluff military man and as a clever politician. It may appear impossible to be both, but the General gives us that impression. . . . He has a job to do in Europe. If he were to state publicly that he had an eye on the White House, his influence and prestige in Western Europe would suffer a sharp slump. He immediately would leave the economic and military field in the eyes of the Europeans and become a politician, an office seeker. . . . Eisenhower is playing his cards right. The Times is convinced that when the 'call' comes he will answer it."

WICHITA Eagle (Ind.): "Eisenhower has a very important assignment in Europe and mixing directly in partisan politics would reduce his effectiveness or eliminate him."

altogether. . . . But the practical political point remains that a reticent Ike is losing potential delegates. His cause will have to be almost an irresistible force indeed if he does not start until next spring after many of the crucial delegate lineups have jelled. . . . His Republican friends, including those in Kansas, are plenty worried. Sen. Taft is making delegate hay, and you can't block him with the prospect that possibly Ike will run."

NEW YORK Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "As far as it was possible for him to do—within the precise limits set by his present military task—General Eisenhower cleared the way for the active efforts of his friends on his behalf. . . . With this reassurance the movement for a draft can surely go forward with added zeal. . . . Without question he will speak his mind as soon as events have ripened to a point which makes it possible for him to weigh in the same scale his obligation to European defense and his obligation to the American people as a possible candidate for the Presidency."

GRAND FORKS (N. D.) Herald (Ind.-Rep.): "It is not likely that the NATO will collapse if Eisenhower is succeeded by some other capable military man, for it is the attitude of the United States and its continued willingness to dish out the coin and men that will determine NATO's continuance. . . . Certainly the man in the White House will always be terrifically important in arriving at that decision. That is why the Herald feels the U. S. presidency should not be considered a sort of second fiddle to NATO. . . . Eisenhower's supporters are admitting that he can overdo the act and brush himself out of the presidential picture."

Supreme Court Agrees To Hear Sawyer Dispute

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 — The Supreme Court has agreed to decide whether Commerce Secretary Sawyer should go to jail for contempt of court in the complicated squabble over control of the Dollar shipping empire.

It did not act, however, on the government's request for review of lower court rulings that the $68 million firm, now the American President Lines, must be returned to the R. Stanley Dollar interests.

Sawyer, eight other government officials and George L. Killian, the company's president, were held in contempt by the District of Columbia appeals court for refusing to give up control of the line. The appeals judges warned in finding the officials guilty of civil contempt last May that they would go to jail unless "effective possession" of the stock in dispute was turned over to Dollar. The Supreme Court stepped in at that point and stayed any sentencing until it looked over the case. It agreed yesterday to make a full-scale review of the contempt findings.

Held in Contempt along with Sawyer were Under Secretary of Commerce Philip B. Fleming, Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman, Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford, Former Maritime Administration Solicitor Paul D. Page Jr. and four Justice Department attorneys.

The almost unprecedented clash between the executive and judicial branches of the government grew out of a disputed transfer of stock from Dollar to the old Maritime Commission in 1938.

Dollar contended the 2,200,000 shares which made up 92 percent of the common stock in his Dollar Steamship Line were only pledged to the government as security for $7,500,000 in financial aid.

The government claimed it became the owner of the stock.

though a $4,500,000 loan included in the deal was later repaid in full. The courts repeatedly sided with Dollar in a six-year legal battle that went to the Supreme Court on two previous occasions. Sawyer gave up the actual issues of stock last Spring, but refused to complete the transfer on the company's books or turn over control of the shipping line to Dollar.

Truman Scurries Ashore As Aides Spot Barracuda

KEY WEST, Nov. 14—Security measures were tightened today in the beach area where President Truman swims after man-killing barracuda sent the President and his staff scurrying ashore for safety.

Two of the presidential staff, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan and David Bell, who were swimming in deep water, were pulled into a patrol boat to escape possible attack by the rapacious, saw-toothed killers.

The President, swimming with his "Missouri side-stroke," in shallow water nearer the beach, walked ashore as a warning cry came from Secret Service men.

The alarm was raised by the Secret Service in a rowboat a short time after the President reached the beach for his daily swim.

As the President was lazily swimming in shallow water about 30 yards from the beach line, the Secret Service men spotted a school of small fish frantically leaping from the water and swimming toward the beach at high speed.

They were being attacked by long, torpedo-shaped fish that darted hungrily at the racing school. Fishermen said the fish appeared to be barracuda, whose long rows of razor sharp, serrated teeth, and vicious temper make them as dangerous as tiger sharks. Fishermen said that one bite from a barracuda will sever a man's leg or arm.

750,000 Nimrods Being Expected To Take Fields In Ohio Thursday

Thursday is the opening of the upland game and trapping season in Ohio. The Division of Wildlife expects slightly more than 750,000 hunters to be in the field on the opening day, providing the weather is good.

Prospects for hunter success, according to the game management section of the Division of Wildlife, are very good, particularly for those nimrods seeking pheasants.

The ringneck population in Ohio is up and the birds should be easier to find this year due to the fact that soybeans and corn have been harvested early this year.

With this in mind the game management section is predicting a much heavier pheasant kill this year as compared to 1950. In addition to more favorable hunting conditions this fall, the pheasant season extends from Nov. 15 to 30, inclusive.

Jersey Turnpike OK'd By Judges

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—The city of Newark has lost an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court in a dispute with state officials over construction of the New Jersey turnpike.

The high court dismissed the city's appeal from a state supreme court decision on grounds the case involves no substantial federal question.

The city challenged the right of the turnpike authority set up by the state legislature to determine how the section of the super highway passing through Newark should be built, but the courts sided with the state.

Hotel Strike Nearing End

COLUMBUS, Nov. 14—An official of the Neil House said normal operations are expected to be resumed tomorrow at the 650-room hotel which was hit by a strike of service employees for union recognition.

The strike was called by Local 505 of Hotel & Restaurant Employees & Bartenders (AFL) which reported that more than half of the eligible workers had registered by noon yesterday at strike headquarters.

The walkout was called by the local in an effort to gain recognition of the union as the bargaining agent for the hotel's estimated 300 service employees.

Sen. Bridges Goes To Clinic

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 14—Sen. Styles Bridges, New Hampshire Republican, was reported in "good" condition in Blodgett Memorial hospital after his collapse here last night.

Dr. Felix S. Alfenite said Bridges was suffering from intestinal influenza and added that the senator would be confined to the hospital for several days.

Bridges arrived in Grand Rapids yesterday to address the Men's City Club. The speech was cancelled, however, when the 53-year-old senator remained in his hotel room most of the day complaining of dizziness.

750,000 Nimrods Being Expected To Take Fields In Ohio Thursday

Thursday is the opening of the upland game and trapping season in Ohio. The Division of Wildlife expects slightly more than 750,000 hunters to be in the field on the opening day, providing the weather is good.

Prospects for hunter success, according to the game management section of the Division of Wildlife, are very good, particularly for those nimrods seeking pheasants.

The ringneck population in Ohio is up and the birds should be easier to find this year due to the fact that soybeans and corn have been harvested early this year.

With this in mind the game management section is predicting a much heavier pheasant kill this year as compared to 1950. In addition to more favorable hunting conditions this fall, the pheasant season extends from Nov. 15 to 30, inclusive, giving hunters 14 days of shooting—four more than last year.

DAILY HUNTING hours are 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and the daily bag limit for each hunter is two cock birds and the possession limit is four after the first day.

Shooting hen birds in Ohio is illegal. Game management officials are expecting the rabbit kill to be about the same or slightly less than last year. Rabbits are spotty due to the wide differences in habitat. Last year 4,664,530 cottontails were harvested.

Daily hunting hours for rabbits are the same as for pheasants, with the season extending from Nov. 15 to Jan. 1, inclusive. Bag and possession limits are four.

Ruffed grouse are reported plentiful in several tiers of counties extending from Ashtabula in the northeast, down along the eastern border, south to the Ohio River and along the river to Adams County. Bag limit is four and possession limit four. Season extends from Nov. 15, 1951, to Jan. 1, inclusive. Hunter hours 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Raccoon seem plentiful almost everywhere, particularly in the northern half of the state. Opossums very plentiful everywhere and skunks are plentiful in the northern portion of the state. Prospects for muskrats and minks are better than last year.

Orient Youth Doing Special Research In Ohio University

Bill Wright Enters Field Of Botany

Imported Wood Properties Studied

William (Bill) Wright of Orient is going honors work in the field of botany at Ohio university and will have his research paper published by "Lloydia," the official journal of the Lloydia Pharmaceutical Co., Cincinnati.

Wright, who is a senior in the college of arts and sciences, has been doing research on the pharmaceutical properties of Guaiacum officinale, a wood imported from South America and the West Indies and used as a medical stimulant and chemical indicator.

Wright has made a complete chemical analysis of the wood, something that has never been done before, and he has made a thorough investigation of its chemical and physical properties.

He has discovered three new qualities of the wood which he hopes to be of value. Wright was aided in his chemical analysis by Dr. Jesse Day of the Ohio university chemistry department. His project is under the directorship of Dr. A. H. Blickle, chairman of the botany department.

Wright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wright and is a graduate of Mt. Sterling high school. He is a member of Sigma Theta Epsilon fraternity, Scabbard and Blade, which is an ROTC honorary, and he is on the "dean's list."

TEN OTHER Ohio university seniors are doing research on their own initiative for the present academic year, under the Honors Work program, a relatively new venture in the field of undergraduate studies. More students are expected to apply for this program that allows free reign for outstanding seniors.

University seniors with an accumulative average of 3.0 or over have the opportunity of choosing a subject for research on individual initiative, to be under the direction of a professor of the student's choice.

A senior who gains the approval both of the professor he wishes to supervise his work and the dean of his college may embark on his subject, which he studies

Lausche Curbs Yule Parties

COLUMBUS, Nov. 14—Governor Lausche has banned all Christmas parties on state property at which liquor would be served.

Instead, the governor said, Christmas services featured by the singing of carols, would be held in the State Office Building the day before Christmas. Lausche added:

"I have instructed all subordinates there shall be no liquor at any Christmas parties of state employees held on state property in Columbus or other places throughout the state."

First Airplane License Issued

COLUMBUS, Nov. 14—A Dayton corporation today is the first applicant for aircraft registration and license under Ohio's new law requiring all owners and operators of at his own rate during the academic year.

Juniors also are being encouraged to register, but the work is to be done during the senior year.

Among those already enrolled in honors work are two foreign students, one from India and the other from Iraq. Satish Arora, the Indian student, is majoring in history and government and is taking as his project a study of Franco's influence on Spain and the place of Spain in the community of nations today. He is attending Ohio university on a trustee's scholarship and plans to go on to graduate work. He is president of the International Club on campus and a member of YMCA, Men's Independent Association, and Public Affairs Committee.

IGOR SHWABE is doing his honors work a hospital design for Basra, Iraq. It is to be of the 100-bed type and will suit both the native and European population in the community. Graduated from Latimer Upper School in London, England, Shwabe is originally from Iraq. He is the holder of the East Green Scholarship at Ohio University and has had three tuition scholarships. A major in architectural engineering, he is a member of the Russian Club.

Other students engaged in honors work include H. Philip Peterson of New Philadelphia, Gene P. Chufar of Canton, Robert W. Jones of Newton Falls, Albert C. Gubitz Jr. of Athens, Winfield S. Hall of Napoleon, Paul Ashbrook of Alexandria, Robert G. Dennis of Cleveland, and Alan Talbott of Fly.

aircraft to be licensed.

G. H. Leland, Inc., of Dayton submitted the first application and was closely followed by Atlas Underwear Co. of Piqua.

Effective Jan. 1, aircraft owners in the state will pay a uniform annual license tax based on the seating capacity of the airplane as listed by the manufacturer. The rates will run from $6 for two seaters to $15 for five-seaters plus $5 for each additional seat over five. The law replaces the "personal property tax" which was said to be inequitable and to lack uniformity.
